Mrs. Bitting's Attempt to Kill Her Two Children.

tion yesterday and requested that the police at once take charge of his sister-inlaw, Mrs. Laura Bitting, residing on the Ridge road near the Conduit, saving she had developed insanity to a violent degree and was dangerous to be at large. The patrol was accordingly sent in charge of several officers. The woman was found with glaring eyes and wild aspect. She had conceived the idea to kill her two children, a boy and a girl, and had locked them in a room preparatory, as it was later found, to committing the crime. The boy, however, had managed to escape and was found by the officers, frightened and trembling, sitting on a rock a quarter of a mile from the house. He is a little fel-low, but realized at once that his mother was deranged, and fled for his life.

The Bogus Check Man.

The bogus check man, an account of whose operations was published in yesterday's Star, made his appearance in Georgetown last night and made an effort to pass a check for $15 at Brace's drug store. But the druggist had read of his conduct in the druggist had read of his conduct in other sections and he declined to accept "Charles H. Johnson's" check on the Second National Bank. Word was sent to the police station of the man's presence in the store, but when the police arrived the alleged swindler had disappeared. From there he went to O'Donnell's store, corner of 32d street, but he soon became satisfied that he would fare no better there than he had at Brace's, and so he boarded a cuble car and disappeared. a cable car and disappeared.

EXCITEMENT IN COMMONS ENGLAND'S FUTURE POLICY CROWDS AT CHAUTAUQUA

He is Suspended and Excluded for a Week-Debating Home Rule Prospects.

There was a sensational scene in the British house of commons last evening. Sir Richard Webster, conservative, moved that a certified copy of the trial and con viction of Michael Daly, the dynamiter, who was recently elected to parliament, representing Limerick, although he was con victed in 1884 of having been engaged in dynamite conspiracies, be furnished to the nouse and that the governor of Portland prison present a certificate to the effect that Daly is still a prisoner in that prison. Mr. John Redmond, Parnellite, said that he recognized in the motion the first step n proceedings aiming at overriding the erick, and he protested against it and insisted upon a division, Parnellite, protested that it was unbecoming behavior upon the part of the gentle-men sitting near the Rt. Hon. A. J. Bal-four, first lord of the treasury and con-servative leader in the house of commons, to be "sniggering" at Mr. Redmond's remanimous election of the electors of Limfour, first lord of the treasury and conservative leader in the house of commons, to be "sniggering" at Mr. Redmond's remarks.

Dr. Tanner was intensely excited, and said that before a decision in the Daly matter was arrived at he would call the attention of the house to the indecorous behavior of the gentleman who was the leader of the house and the gentleman who sits beside him. Continuing, Dr. Tanner remarked that when men stand up and do their best for a poor man who is in prison that is no reason why the gentlemen sitting on the treasury benches should snigger and sneer in a way unbecoming of gentlemen or of members of the house.

Dr. Tanner's remarks were interrupted by loud cries of "order."

The Daly matter was made the order of the day for Monday.

The Irish Question.

The Irish Question.

Mr. Redmond moved an amendment to the address inviting the government to de-clare that there would be no delay in the rish policy. Five-sixths of the electors of Ireland had declared in favor of home rule, and he protested that the verdict of the election was not against home rule. He warned the government that Ireland could not be satisfactorily governed from West-minister, and that the only remedy for her minister, and that the only remedy for her ills was national self-governmen!.

Regarding the land legislation, he admitted that the only remedy was compulsory purchase by the tenant.

Horace Plunkett, M. P. for the south division of Dublin county, and a conservative, said he believed the time had come when, owing to the changed views of the Irish, a tory government could legislate for Ireland in a spirit of sympathy. If the government ignored the material interests of Ireland, the home rule demand would cer tinue, and the tories would have lost a great opportunity.

John Dillon said he feared that the ominous silence of the government would undo the life work of Parnell, who brought the Irish people to believe that home rule could be won on the floor of that house. The result of the life work of the the life work of the property of the life work of the be won on the floor of that house. The result of the elections entitled him to assert that unionism was receding in Ireland. Therefore, he moved an amendment declaring the necessity of immediate legislation on the land question in Ireland, in accordance with the recommendations of last year's committee.

Home Rule Opposed. Mr. Gerald Balfour, chief secretary for Ire and, recognized Mr. Redmond's moderate tone, but reminded him of the great differ-ence between the state of things now and in 1886. His reports showed that the harvests were good in every district of Ireland, and that there was no very heavy fall in prices in the last two years. Therefore, the land question was not urgent. He had only question was not urgent. He had only been in office for a month, and could not be expected to give an exhaustive answer to all questions, but as to the home rule attitude of the government, it would continue to be one of unchanged and inflexible exposition. (Conservative cheers.)

He was not going to discuss the result of the election. The land question could only be dealt with by an entirely non-contentions hill and it would suffice if the bill though the country of the second country to the second country of the second country of the bill though the country of the bill the second country of the second country of the bill the second country of the se was deranged, and fied for his life.

The mother's condition, it is claimed, is the result of her husband's death a few days ago. Fear of want following did much to promote it. It is said, though, that the persistency of her husband's relatives in holding spiritualistic seances in the home since the death, has done much to augment her weakness.

The woman is a devout Catholic, consequently is violently opposed to these performances. The strong opposition offered while in a high state of nervous grief no doubt brought on much of the mental distress.

There were continual rappings, exclamations, etc., which kept the bereaved wife unnerved constantly. It was alleged that conversations were being held with the spirit of her dead husband.

Mrs. Bitting says she wants to go to heaven with her husband and wants to take her children with her. For this reason she intended to kill them.

She called the seventh precipat "heaven"

Says Harrington Lies. Mr. Harrington, in the course of some remarks, declared that the liberal party had fled from home rule, whereupon Dr. Tanner, who had already created a scene in the house, shouted out: "A lie." Loud and indignant cries of "Order" were heard from both sides of the house. Dr. Tanner declining to withdraw the expression, the speaker named him.

Mr. Joseph Chamberlain, secretary of state for the colonies, moved that Dr. Tanner be suspended. A division was called for, but Dr. Tanner failed to find a teller, and the speaker declared the motion car-and the speaker declared the motion carried.

Dr. Tanner was thereupon requested to withdraw, but he arose and addressed the speaker amidst loud cries for order. The sergeant-at-arms walked up the floor of the house to where Dr. Tanner stood.

Dr. Tanner then quitted the house acceptanted by the sergeant-at-arms, shoutcompanied by the sergeant-at-arms, shout-ing all the way, "Judas."

Tanner Excluded. Upon the speaker declaring the motion carried, Dr. Tanner shouted that he would withdraw if he were directed to do so from the chair. Upon retiring he made a courtly bow and exclaimed: "I have greater pleasure in leaving than I over had in en-tering this dirty house."

Then, pointing to the treasury bench, he shouted: "Judas." This was repeated four times. Arriving at the door he tried to turn back, but was prevented by the officials, his last words eing:
"None of your nonsense on me."

"None of your nonsense on me."
The house then adjourned.
It was noticeable that during the absence of Mr. Balfour, the government leafter in the house, at the moment of the Tanner scene, Joseph Chamberlain assumed the temporary leadership of the house, which proscriptively belonged to Sir Michael Hicks-Beach, the chancellor of the exchequer, or to Hon. George J. Goschen, first lord of the admiralty.

Dr. Tanner's suspension lasts for one week.

that Dr. Tanner, on his own responsibility, had given notice of 200 motions to reduce the estimate.

The Times says that when the division was called on Dr. Tanner's expulsion numerous Irish members and some of the radicals quitted the house. Dr. Tanner may use the lobby, the smoking rooms, &c. only a third expulsion carries with it ex-

Attitude Regarding the Recent Chinese Outrages and the Massacres in Armenia-Rosebery Speaks.

In the British house of lords vesterday afternoon Lord Rosebery, the Marquis of Lansdowne, the Marquis of Ripon, Earl Spencer and Baron Tweedmouth were present when the Duke of Marlborough moved the address in reply to the queen's speech. that he was happy Earl Cadogan was installed in Dublin as lord lieutenant of Ireland, and expressed the hope that he would continue that firm policy which was carried out by the Rt. Hon. A. J. Balfour when the latter was chief secretary for Ireland. He also remarked that he trusted the government, during recess, would con-sider the question of husbandry, and make a serious attempt to relieve the distress ex-sider the question of husbandry, and make a serious attempt to relieve the distress existing.

When the Duke of Mariborough took his seat, the Marquis of Salisbury grasped his hand and shook it heartily.

Barch Ampthill seconded the motion and said he was confident that if foreign complications arose there would be a masterhand at the helm, and he was sure the government would do justice to Ireland in regard to the landlords.

Lord Rosebery congratulated the Duke of Mariborough and Baron Ampthill on the able manner in which they had fulfilled their task. Referring to the queen's speech, he said that the policy adopted in regard to Bechuanaland was that of the late government, but, he asked, what measures were intended respecting China, and wanted details as to how the massacres had occurred. The ex-premier also expressed himself as being certain that the Marquis of Salisbury thought it as necessary as did the late government to obtain guarantees from the Sultan of Turkey against a recurrence of the atrocities in Armenia, which the marquis must now know officially were terrible, and could not be tolerated.

He hoped the government's decision to continue to occupy Chitral was not definitive, as the late government, fater careful consideration of the subject, had arrived at a directly cyposite conclusion.

Rosebery dwelt upon the fickleness of electoral results, and admitted that the present government was supported by a large majority. The elections, he claimed, had shown that the creed of a lifetime cannot be put into the manifesto of a moment.

The ex-premier also said that though the policy of the liberals must have altered, their principles were unaltered. He was not prepared to adopt the view that the elections settled the Irish question. The schism existing among the Irish party was regretable, but that would not prove that the question of self-government for Ireland would have to be granted.

The government, Lord Rosebery continued, would be forced in time to acknowledge that the best means of conducting Irish business is through the Irish.

"I am convinced," he concluded, "that you will see home rule extended not only to Ireland, but possibly to Scotland, and I do not even limit the evolution there."

The Premier Replies.

The Marquis of Salisbury, the prime minster, then arose to reply. He said: "The noble lord complains of the brevity of the queen's speech. Where there is not spend many words describing what is to criment holds that the abandonment of Chitral is unwise as a question of moral as well as physical strategy. It is useless to follow Lord Rosebery through the wide area of his disquisitions. I will not describe our intentions in regard to the constitution of this house or in respect to the adoption of home rule. When we introduce bills touching these matters it will be time enough to discuss them."

duce bills touching these matters it will be time enough to discuss them."
Regarding the massacres of missionaries at Ku-Cheng, Lord Salisbury said:
"There is every reason to believe that the Chinese government is sincerely desirous of punishing the perpetrators of the outrage, and those who connived it. Should any lukewarmness become discernible it will become our duty to supply its defect. With respect to Armenia we have accepted the policy which our predecessors initiated, and cur efforts will be directed to obtaining an adequate guarantee for the carrying out of reform. We have received the most leyal support from both France and Russia. The permanence of the sultan's rule sia. The permanence of the sultan's rule is involved in the conduct he pursues. The Sultan Warned. Lord Salisbury exhorted the Sultan to remember that his independence is of a very special kind. It is the creature of an agree ment, and Europe, which conferred upon Turkey a facetious stability, has long been uneasy as to the moral burden which its joint action involved. It fears that it may be upholding a mechanism which does not work for human happiness and progress, but has rather tended to perpetuate the an-tagonism of creed and race, which have so long been the curse of the Turkish prov-

Dr. Tanner Accuses an Associate of Lord Salisbury, the Premier, Addresses The Attendance at the Summer Classes

Larger Than Ever. Sports and Recreations Indulged in by the Visitors-The Program

Special Correspondence of The Evening Star. CHAUTAUQUA, N. Y., August 13, 1895.

Over 12,000 people are at present within the grounds of the Chautauqua Lake As-sembly. Many hundreds are in the summer classes, large numbers are interested in members of their families and friends who are this year to graduate from the C. L. S. C. course, but by far the largest is the class who are present for the purpose of resting at this delightful point on the lake, and who elect to attend but a few of the numerous lectures. This latter class has steadily grown in numbers during the past ten years, for Chautauqua has become famous the country over for reasons other than its connection with the C. L. S. C.

mous the country over for reasons other than its connection with the C. L. S. C. movement. To these persons abundant means of recreation are furnished.

Bicycles may be seen by the score, and a very generous percentage of the riders are ladies—but not in bloomers. A cycling academy is patronized by many who are enxious to become accomplished riders before they return to their city homes, and groups of these amateurs may be frequently seen on the roads running to and from the riding school. The lake, of course, furnishes sport for those fond of boating and fishing. Bass are quite plentiful but a short distance from Chautauqua, and, indeed, I am told of a pickerel caught some time ago that weighed forty pounds.

At the northeast corner of the grounds is a ball field, and the Chautauqua nine has so far been victorious in nearly every one of its match games with clubs from nearby towns. This is the nine conducted for many seasons by Stagg, Yale's famous pitcher. In fact, the present players are principally college men spending their vaccations here. Their shirt fronts indicate that they belong to such institutions as Yale, Harvard and Amherst. The games are witnessed by hundreds, and the Assembly Herald has remarked that the theologians should be sought in the afternoons at the base ball grounds instead of sembly Herald has remarked that the the-ologians should be sought in the after-noons at the base ball grounds instead of at their boarding houses. Grounds are also provided for those who prefer to indulge in the lighter sports of tennis and croquet. But these means of recreation are but sec-ondary, of course, to the greater objects for which the assembly is conducted.

An Attractive Closing Program. Heretofore the last month of the assembly has received the greater attention, as a much larger number of people usually at-tend the closing weeks. This year, however, it has been the aim of the management to of equal interest to the attractions offered in August. Their plan was carried out as fully as practicable, and there was yet left for August a program of glowing interest. I' included such men and subjects as the following: Dr Wm. R. Harper, president of the University of Chicago, on "Bible Study," Gen. John B. Gordon of Georgia, on "The Lost Days of the Confederacy;" Frank G. Carpenter, the well-known news gathers, on his travels in the Orient, and many others on various subjects. Among them Principal A. M. Fairbairn of England, Dr. A. B. Bruce of the Free Church of Scotlend, Prof. F. O. Atwater, Dr. J. M. Buckley, Mr. H. H. Ragan, Mr. John Piske, Rev. W. F. Crafts and Mr. Wm. McKinley.

The lecture by Gen. Gordon was one of the longest of the scason. For two hours and ten minutes he held his audlence, and a score of times he was cheered to the echo. The sight of one of the greatest, if not the greatest, of living war generals standing on a northern platform and talking freely and honestly on the last days of a lost cause, bearing malice toward none and good-will toward all, was a spectacle present a program in July which would be

Yesterday afternoon Bishop Vincent, the chancellor of the assembly, lectured on "A Layman's Study of Sidney Lanier." Very warm, indeed, was the tribute paid to the memory of the lamented southern poet. Bishop Vincent outlined his life, speaking of his devotion to his art and his pathetic battle against the inroads of consumption. Life in the open air, by waste places, the marsh, the glen, amid the fragrance of great forests and God's green fields, was all in all to him. Said Dr. Vincent: "If ever a poet revealed himself and reveled in a high kingdom of thought and life, consistent, vast, filled with righteousness, radiant with the beauty of holiness, which few can forget-which thousands ness, radiant with the beauty of peopled with royal souls, full of t peopled with royal souls, full of the Divine love and wisdom, certainly Sidney Lanier is that poet."

Tomorrow is Grange day, and 3,000 visit-ors are expected from the country surrounding. McKinley to Make a Speech Saturday, August 24, will be Grand Army day, and on that occasion there will be a patriotic concert by the band, chorus and otus Glee Club, and an address by Gov. McKinley of Ohio. There are some especial favorites at Chautauqua, and Mr. McKinley is one of these. Not only will the persons staying within the grounds turn out to hear him, but the G, A. R. posts for miles arcund will attend in full force.

Few men can take a chorus of 500 volces who have never before sung together and in a few rehearsals produce, without a hitch, the oratorio "The Messlah," yet this is what was done by Dr. H. R. Palmer, and the amphitheater was filled with 7,000 persons to hear the rendition. The choir is composed of all persons within the grounds who are possessed of fair volces, and is assisted on special occasions by a quartet of well-known soloists. The afternoon concerts are participated in by Mr. Bernard Listemann, Mr. W. H. Sherwood, Miss Lincoln, Mr. Flagler and others.
